

Today is Week 1 of a special worship series titled
“Dear Children of God: Dear Beloved Children.”

When was the last time you opened an actual love letter? One written by hand, perhaps, on fancy stationery? It’s rare, to be sure. But there is something special about that mode of communication, something personal, something human. A letter is a reminder of a relationship. Therefore, it was to be treasured, read and reread, maybe for years. It may seem odd, after that prologue to launch into a series from Hebrews. Written by an unknown hand to an unknown and scattered audience, the letter to the Hebrews seems more like a theological treatise or a sermonic exhortation than a letter. Yet, we reflect on the human side of faith as we engage in this ancient but ever-new conversation. We invite you, dear children of God, to join us in the dialog.

August 10th: “Desire a Better Country”
August 17th: “For the Sake of the Joy”
August 24th: “Cannot Be Shaken”
August 31st: “Let Mutual Love Continue”

Today is Week 1 of a special worship series titled
“Dear Children of God: Dear Beloved Children.”

When was the last time you opened an actual love letter? One written by hand, perhaps, on fancy stationery? It’s rare, to be sure. But there is something special about that mode of communication, something personal, something human. A letter is a reminder of a relationship. Therefore, it was to be treasured, read and reread, maybe for years. It may seem odd, after that prologue to launch into a series from Hebrews. Written by an unknown hand to an unknown and scattered audience, the letter to the Hebrews seems more like a theological treatise or a sermonic exhortation than a letter. Yet, we reflect on the human side of faith as we engage in this ancient but ever-new conversation. We invite you, dear children of God, to join us in the dialog.

August 10th: “Desire a Better Country”
August 17th: “For the Sake of the Joy”
August 24th: “Cannot Be Shaken”
August 31st: “Let Mutual Love Continue”